Both the recursive and iterative algorithms have the same time complexity because they perform similar operations iterating through the string and checking for balanced substrings but the recursive version might have a slightly higher computational cost due to the additional function calls